Effort To Smash Union Leads To Reopening of General Strike

TO DISCUSS STATUS THIS AFTERNOON

Conditions of The Nine Day Struggle Are Re-enacted

(Associated Press)

LONDON, May 13.—Great Britain's nine day general strike, called off yesterday, switched to what Labor regarded as a widespread lockout by the employers against Union men seeking to return to work on the old status.

The development came as one of the most dramatic of all those in the disturbed days since the industrial upheaval began, what it amounted to, according to Labor men, was a disposition on the part of the employers to smash union influence as far as possible.

The Trades Union Congress, which conducted the strike, and announced its termination yesterday, accepted the gauge and in frank statement declared the Trades Union would resent to the utmost, "any attempt to impose humiliating terms on the workers."

Throughout the country the unions and employers are deadlocked—the unions demanding unqualified reinstatement of the strikers and the employers declining to deal with them except on their own terms. These in some cases called for tearing up the union cards, and there was even a refusal in certain instances to re-employ the strikers at all.

The Trades Union Congress, which placed the situation in the hands of the individual unions when it called off the general strike, was in a state of utmost anxiety as reports arrived from the provinces.

The Trades Union Congress had in effect relinquished direct control of the situation. As reports piled in, however, the T. U. C. council intimated it might have to resume charge and asked the government to define its attitude towards the employers position.

Then came another general meeting of the council, after which the T. U. C. headquarters issued its statement of warning.

Meanwhile Premier Baldwin announced that the House of Commons would debate the situation at 6:30 this evening. The opinion was expressed in the lobby of the House that this was the outcome of the formal demand from the Laborites after a meeting of the parliamentary Labor party.

Thus the battle which the country last night thought had been settled continues, but instead of the massed fighting which proceeded during the nine days of the general strike, it has developed for the time being into a hand-to-hand conflict to determine whether organized Labor or the employers shall rule.

Instead of the resumption of normal conditions, an announcement came from the government that the emergency food services would be maintained.

LLOYD GEORGE looking upon the Thames from his window sees a river with not a boat moving, "as it was in the days of Julius Caesar." The Thames will soon be crowded again, for the strike cannot last. "You cannot indict a whole nation," and you cannot permanently tie up a great country with a strike.

Five millions cannot rule forty millions, however great and cruel the injustice to mine workers.

WHEN Lloyd George speaks of the Thames, empty as in the days of Caesar, you remember that a day is coming when all rivers, lakes, oceans, mountains and valleys will be empty, of all life.

This earth will die as men and animals die, gradually going to pieces, the fragments helping to build other planets, as animals die and feed other animals, as trees live on mould made of dead trees.

THAT DAY fortunately is millions of years away, according to scientists. Only twelve thousand years from the stone age the human race has scores of millions of years ahead, years of ceaselessly in-

PARIS, May 13.—Le Temps reports that Marshal Pilsudski was in control of Warsaw at eight o'clock last night. President Wojciechowski and the members of the government returning to the Belvedere palace.

Both sides are negotiating in order to avoid bloodshed. The city was calm during the night.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Pilsudski's revolutionary forces have occupied Warsaw, except for the presidential residence, which is protected by loyal troops, said official advices today to the state department.

LONDON, May 13.—The last authentic news of the Polish military revolt, received in London, declared that President Wojciechowski, with the idea of preserving peace, had offered to relinquish the presidency in favor of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, head of the disaffected troops.

Pilsudski is said to have refused, after the offer had been considered by his followers including the leftists, or radicals.

The present situation in the Polish capital is not clear and the legation here has received no word since the first report that a military revolt had broken out. Officials attribute this to the interruption of wire communication, which, according to last accounts, were in the hands of the government and guarded by local troops.

CUNNINGHAM TRIES TO PROVE AN ALIBI IN ANNISTON COURT

Gadsden Mechanic On Trial For Life Scores Point During Day

ATTACK MADE ON MRS. LUM SCOTT

Brother Denies That He Had Improper Relations With Her

(Associated Press)

ANNISTON, Ala., May 13.—Attempts to attack the character of Mrs. Lum Scott and to bolster the efforts to establish an alibi constituted high points in the trial today of Mark Cunningham, Gadsden mechanic, charged with slaying Lum Scott.

Pete Cunningham, brother of Lum Scott, denied that he ever had immoral relations with Mrs. Scott as had been rumored and vigorously denied. Scott was a defense witness.

Pete Cunningham, uncle of Mark Cunningham, testified that on the night of the murder, about seven o'clock, he had an extra tire put on his car by Mark Cunningham in Gadsden.

C. L. Payne, Gadsden, testified that he had his automobile lights repaired about 7:30 o'clock on the night of the murder in Cunningham's Gadsden garage.

T. T. Phillips and B. M. Boozer, Gadsden, swore that they saw the defendant around seven o'clock in Gadsden.

Gus Lister and Guy Lister, brothers, Gadsden, testified they saw the defendant on the afternoon of the murder and that he apparently was clean shaven. This testimony was brought out by the defense in an effort to prove that Cunningham was not the man who lured Scott from his home and later attacked Mrs. Scott.

Mrs. Scott previously had testified that her assailant wore a stubby beard.

John Bridges, accessory dealer of Gadsden, testified that Cunningham was in his store on the afternoon of the murder and that he, apparently, had been shaven that day or the day before as his face was almost free of beard.

French Gay and a clerk in his store testified that Cunningham bought a loaf of bread in Gay's grocery at Gadsden about seven o'clock on the night of murder and Gay produced a duplicate sales ticket for the sale, which was offered in evidence.

Gaylor, of Jellico, Tenn., is perhaps wounded fatally and Joe Collier, pool room proprietor, is dead as the result of a gun battle last night at Jellico.

The two police chiefs, accompanied by another officer, had attempted to arrest Collier, who declared he would die before going to jail, according to witnesses, and a gun battle ensued.

Collier was reported to have been shooting at his home during a domestic altercation earlier in the day Wednesday and the officers had gone to arrest him.

HEALTH PLEA HEARD WITH SYMPATHY BY BOARD OF REVENUE

Budget Already Made Up, The Members Tell Dr. McRee

EXTRA FUND MAY BE VOTED LATER

Usual Appropriation Is Made To Continue Health Work

Members of the Morgan County board of revenue, while lending a sympathetic ear to the appeal of Dr. H. C. McRee, Morgan county health officer, for an extra appropriation of $5,000 for a sanitation fight in the rural districts of this county this year were forced to take under advisement the request.

The budget for the county already has been made up, based on the estimated revenue for the year. Members of the board explained, however, that there was an outside possibility of there being a surplus in which event the health department's request would receive earnest consideration.

Members of the board realized, it was stated, the need for something to be done toward reduction of the number of deaths of infants in the rural sections, the ratio in the rural districts being about three times as high as it is in the cities, where better sanitary measures are in vogue.

The board continued the usual appropriation to the health work in this county and it is believed that when funds become available, the necessary money to extend the work will be appropriated.

ATLANTA MAN KILLS WOMAN; THEN SELF

Leaves Body In Road; Returns Home and Swallows Poison

(Associated Press)

ATLANTA, May 13.—Homer Leach, 42, slashed to death Mrs. Flora Knowles, 25, on a roadway near the city last night, left the woman's body lying in the road and returned to his home here where he committed suicide by drinking poison.

Residents of the section where Mrs. Knowles was slain, saw the pair drive up in an automobile to a roadway intersection, climb out and quarrel violently. Before they could interfere, Leach cut the woman's throat with a pocket knife, regained his car and sped away. She died instantly.

Returning to his home Leach was said to have turned to members of the family with the exclamation that: "I have killed a woman and now I am going to end it all before the police come."

The body of Mrs. Knowles was identified by Leach's son and by former neighbors. She had been separated from her husband for little more than a year, while Leach's wife died several years ago.

Swinging back up the Valley, Mr. Patterson went into "High Jackson" county today, accompanied by a number of Albany-Decatur, "Patterson for Governor" boosters. INTENSIVE SEARCH FOR DEATH CAR IS CONTINUED TODAY

Machine Which Had Stopped In Pulaski Given Release

DEVELOPMENT IS EXPECTED SOON

Officers Believe That An Arrest Will Be Made Soon

Officer Higgins, of the Hartsville police department, told The Daily over long distance telephone this afternoon, officials had nothing further to make public at this time. Leads have been obtained, however, which officers were hopeful would prove fruitful.

Officers today continued their intensive search for the occupants of the car, which yesterday killed the five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Thomas, just south of Hartsville. The car which was stopped in Pulaski proved not to be the one wanted, officers stated.

According to reports received by police here the car which struck the Thomas child, continued northward along the Bee line highway after the accident, without stopping.

Death was believed to have resulted immediately after the child was struck by the machine, at the southern terminus of the Shoal Creek bridge, south of the city of Hartsville. The body was dragged some distance.

The accident was witnessed by the eleven year old sister of the victim, who is expected to be able to identify the car and its occupants.

The Hartsville traffic officer, who gave chase to the death car yesterday on the highway and M. J. Mitchell, Albany traffic officer, both were at work on the case today. Officers believed that they would be able to round up the death car within a short time.

Efforts were made throughout Tuesday night and Wednesday to recover the body of the drowned man, proving of no avail until late Wednesday afternoon when the body was located with grappling hooks. It is understood that Phillips was laying a trotline Tuesday when the boat capsized and he was lost beneath the waters. The body was taken to Brown Undertaking parlors for burial preparation.

The deceased is survived by his wife and two children. The family resides at 416 East Wilson avenue.

THE GOLDEN COCOON

RUTH CROSS

SYNOPSIS

Molly Shannon, student in the State University, feels that she has compromised with life because she permitted Stephen Renfro, an efficiency expert, to kiss her, though he hasn't proposed marriage. Attending a concert with her landlady one evening, she is shocked to see Renfro in the company of "Miss Honore Dilworth's daughter." With Renfro are Gregory Cochran, the "big lawyer," and others. Filled with humiliation and jealousy, she finds the remainder of the evening a nightmare.

At the first intermission, Molly made good her escape.

That night was marked by a very cross. She never spoke to Stephen about it; never let him know even that she had gone to the concert. A poor nurse for saving the last shreds of her self-respect. Then, too, she did him justice. He had a right to go where he pleased and with whom he pleased. She had no hold on him other than his half-pitying, half-bantering kindness saw fit to acknowledge. He had, it was true, made love to her, beautiful, intense love; but not in any vulgar, tangible way that you could put your finger on and say he meant thus or so.

Then came the crisis. She turned from the telephone one morning with a rapt, luminous face. "Stephen has asked me to go to the theater with him," she said, trying hard to keep the tremulous exultation out of her voice, "to-morrow night!"

Of a sudden, she grew numb. The receiver dropped from her hand. "But I haven't anything to wear..." The despairing afterthought was almost a wail.

"You've got to have something, that's all," Mrs. Parker mumbled. That afternoon she came to Molly's room with a letter in her hand. She seemed not quite her normal self; flustered and flurried as though she had just finished doing battle with some power unseen. "The Lord has provided," she announced solemnly. And before Molly's incredulous eyes—she was always suspicious of some chance cry about answers to prayer—five crisp new ten-dollar bills were spread impressively upon the bed.

Thirty dollars, Mrs. Parker figured absently on the back of her letter as they rode down in the street car, would buy a very good suit; those were the days when a suit could be bought for thirty dollars. Five more would get a nice blouse, then five for shoes. Hum! that left only ten for a hat and gloves and maybe a pair of silk stockings.

CHAPTER X

"Uh-huh..." Stephen let out a prolonged, impressed whistle as she entered the parlor next evening, trying her level best not to look self-conscious. "Where did we come by all the glad rags?" Laughing, he caught her by the shoulders and revolved her slowly at arm's length.

"Do you like them—really?" she asked anxiously. She had known at once that there was something; he was not entirely satisfied. Perhaps, after all, the shape of the hat—she hadn't felt sure about that.

But his hearty tone belied the critical cast in his eyes. "Looks like a million dollars, doesn't she?" he turned to the little fairy godmother, who hadn't for the life of her been able to resist peering in to see how he was taking it.

That evening was one of Molly's brief seasons of perfection. She and Stephen departed and returned in a taxi—unheard-of elegance among the girls, who were gazing awestruck from upstairs windows. Stephen was resplendent in full evening dress, just as he had been that night in the box. The play was "Sappho," with Olga Netherole, Molly, who had never seen a good actress nor a well-staged production before, sat spellbound, enthralled by the emotion which she herself managed to inject into the melodramatic, old-fashioned piece. That seemed enough for one evening. To have Stephen also—to walk down the aisle with him, to let him help her off with her coat to sit beside him, listening to his humorous comments and interjections, his fascinating reminiscences about the wonderful plays and players he had seen in New York—it was almost too much happiness.

It was well she tasted her small triumph while she could. Next morning Miss Brian, the instructor who had charge of the rural scholarship, asked her to stay when class was over. Molly followed, mystified, into her office and seated herself in the chair indicated. Miss Brian did not speak at once, but sat looking out rather somberly through the window by her desk, troubled lines about her mouth and across her wide, white brow. Finally she turned with one of her capable, practical motions. "My dear," she began kindly, "I'm sorry to see that you're not looking well."

Molly, who had been growing restless and vaguely uneasy, started, surprised. "I am, though," she said. Indeed she had never felt so well in her life, so exuberant and sparkling—and this in spite of her sleepless night.

Miss Brian looked at her thoughtfully. "Your name came up at a little faculty meeting the other day," she went on, "and I was disappointed—we were all disappointed—to learn that your work for the year has fallen considerably below your usual standard." She waited, as if hoping that Molly herself would say something.

When there was only silence, she proceeded hesitatingly. "My dear, I'm going to run the risk of having you think me a very tiresome, meddlesome old woman..." She broke off and sat drumming finger tips absently against the desk. "About this Mr. Renfro—I feel I must speak to you."

At the name, at the somehow chilling inference of "this Mr. Renfro," Molly's heart took a sickening lunge.

"Of course none of us know anything about him—not that that matters so much"—she was looking not at Molly, but at the spring campus outspread beneath the window—"but I'm afraid the truth is none of us like him. He seems cynical, egotistical, a poseur. And then—there's the way he has behaved to you."

Molly's eyes were fastened on the fingers twisting in her lap as the fingers discussed at the faculty meeting, too," she asked, faintly. "I'm afraid it was. You see, he's not really a member of the faculty at all, yet it appears he's been making that an excuse for not-taking you out."

Molly leaned forward, her rack'd soul in her eyes. "But he has," she protested eagerly.

Miss Brian nodded, still without looking at her. "I know—that's what I particularly wanted to talk to you about." She hesitated again, as a surgeon might hesitate to plunge the saving knife into warm, unanesthetized flesh. "About the play last night—you didn't suspect, did you, that he had invited Miss Dilworth and a half dozen of the rich society girls with whom he is constantly seen—before he invited you?"

Molly's face turned whiter than the handkerchief worried into ropes in her fingers. "Why—did they refuse?" The words came on small, convulsive gusts of breath. "They did not consider the play—quite decent. The social leaders of the town had pronounced against it, notably Mrs. Sarah Cochran, who strikes the note in such matters. Her son, you know, is on our board of regents..."

Miss Brian digressed compassionately. "And, by the way, you'll be interested to hear that he is the man who gives the rural scholarships. In fact, he's done a great deal for the university, but he doesn't like much said about it."

"But—the play didn't seem to me—indecent..." Her eyes were fixed still on the fingers in her lap, her voice was little more than a moan.

"I'm not saying it was. The point is, he asked you, an innocent young girl to whom he had pretended to be kind, to go to a play which his friends considered indecent. And—there was not a member of the set he aspires to in the theater; at all events, not a feminine member." She paused to choose her next words with care, pityingly cognizant of the stark misery in the white, averted face. "He asked you to go because he knew they would not be there. He could save the expensive tickets he had bought and at the same time—throw out a little sop to you..." She leaned forward and laid a kindly, large hand on Molly's cold ones.

NOVEL MEXICAN DISHES Pacific Coast Expert Tells How to Prepare Them

(Editor's Note: This is one of an unusual cooking series contributed to this paper by six famous cooks. Cut it out and paste in your cook book.)

Enchiladas, picadillo, Spanish rice, beans a la Ayre, and refritos!

Those words conjure up pictures of most palatable and spicy dishes to the Spaniard. And many an American has fallen for their tempting tooth-someness.

Mrs. Kate Brew Vaughn, home economics director, Los Angeles, and author of several cook books, was taught how to make these dishes by a Mexican lady.

Fragrant and Delicious

Mrs. Vaughn gives the following directions for making enchiladas. The gravy may be made the day before. Its ingredients are: 4 ounces chili peppers, 1½ pounds tomatoes, 2 slices hard toast, 1 small onion, pinch each of clove, thyme, pepper, sugar, and salt.

Open peppers, and if it is not desired very hot, remove veins and seeds. Soak in boiling water about 10 minutes. Skin tomatoes by holding over flame. Put toast and onion through food chopper and then strain all the ingredients in order to make a smooth gravy. Melt two tablespoons shortening in frying pan, add gravy, and simmer slowly until smooth and thick.

Filling for Enchiladas (Picadillo)

1 pound pork
1 tablespoon shortening
1 teaspoon chopped onion
Clove of garlic (chopped)
1 cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon chopped green olives
1 tablespoon chopped, blanched almonds
1 tablespoon raisins (chopped)
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 pinch salt
1 pinch sugar
1 teaspoon olive oil
Roll pork until tender, then chop fine. Melt shortening and fry pork until brown. Add onion, garlic, and chili sauce, and fry for three minutes. Add olives, almonds, raisins, and cook two or three minutes. Just before removing add vinegar, salt, sugar and olive oil.

Make Tortillas, Too

1 quart white flour
1 cup lard
2 teaspoons salt
Enough water or milk to make dough sufficiently thick to roll out like biscuit.
Divide into balls size of turkey egg and pat between the hands until thin and round and cook on top of the stove without grease. After frying, dip in hot gravy, place on plate, and place 1½ tablespoons of filling in center. Roll tortilla loosely and garnish with gravy, grated cheese, sliced onion that has been soaked in salt water a few minutes, a green olive, blanched almond, radish, and a sprig of parsley.

Spanish Rice

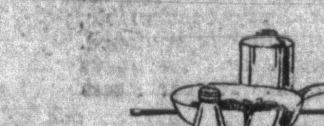

1 cup rice
1 tablespoon shortening
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 clove of garlic
¾ cup tomato sauce
1 quart boiling water
Pepper and salt to taste
Melt the shortening, add the onion, and partially cook, not allowing to brown. Add to rice and fry until brown. Add the tomato sauce a little at a time, allowing each portion to almost cook dry before adding more. Add the boiling water. Do not stir, and allow three to simmer slowly until done. If it is necessary to add more water, be sure it is boiling. Do not stir. Requires about 1½ hours of cooking.

Delicious String Beans

Here's a new way to prepare string beans—a la Ayre. Use 1½ pounds string beans or green beans, 3 eggs, and 2 teaspoons cornstarch. Cook string beans until tender. Separate into bundles of eight or ten. Make batter by beating whites of eggs until stiff. Add slightly beaten yolks. Continue to beat, adding cornstarch. Place a bundle of beans on a large tablespoon and place in batter, working batter around the beans with the spoon. Fry in hot fat until brown on all sides. Serve with the following sauce:

1 teaspoon shortening
1 teaspoon garlic
1 teaspoon chopped onion
1 small tomato
1 teaspoon cornstarch, salt, pepper, and sugar
Melt shortening in frying pan and cook for a few minutes. Add the tomato chopped fine, and cook until almost dry. Add cornstarch and enough water to make a smooth sauce. Add salt and pepper.

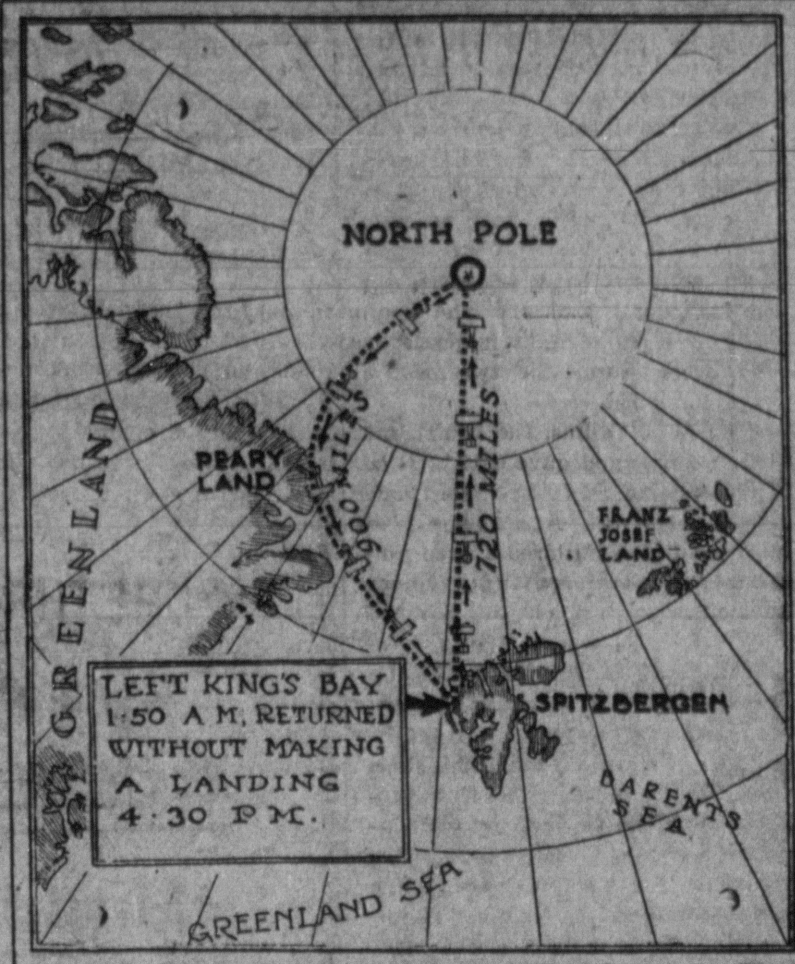

"Pink Beans," Too

"Pink beans" (kidney beans) are very filling. Their Mexican name is "refritos." Take one pound of them, 2 teaspoons salt, 4 tablespoons fat, 2 ounces of cheese, and 2 small Mexican sausages. Wash beans well, and cook with enough water to cover well. Boil about 2 hours. When adding more water be sure to add cold. When beans begin to get soft add the salt. When mealy and tender, drain juice from them, setting juice to one side. Melt fat in frying pan. Add cheese and sliced, chopped sausages. Fry one minute, then remove to dish temporarily. In the same frying pan, pour beans and fry for three minutes. Mash, add the cheese and sausage, juice from beans, and mix thoroughly. You will find these dishes very appetizing, Mrs. Vaughn says. (Watch this page next week for another interesting cooking article.)

COMMANDERY TO MEET

DeMolay Commandery will meet in called session at 7:30 o'clock tonight for the purpose of conferring the Red Cross degree.

Route of Byrd Flight

This diagram shows how Commander Richard E. Byrd of the U. S. Navy placed the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole for the second time in history, dropping the emblem from a plane which took him and his pilot from Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, to the Pole and back again in fourteen hours and forty minutes.

Alabama Federation of Labor Will Meet In Florence On Next Monday

FLORENCE, Ala., May 13—Special—Plans for the annual convention of the Alabama Federation of Labor which will open in the Tri-Cities beginning next Monday, have been completed, and from information received from the state headquarters at Birmingham it is believed that it will be the greatest meeting in several years.

The three days sessions will be devoted almost exclusively to business with the exception of Tuesday afternoon when more serious affairs will be set aside at three o'clock for a drive through the nitrate plants and to Wilson Dam, which will be followed at six o'clock by a barbecue given on the campus of the State Normal school in Florence to the delegates by President H. J. Willingham and the faculty.

The other entertainments will include a dance given by the Woman's Label League on Monday night, and a dinner served by the League to the delegates between twelve and one o'clock on Tuesday as a compliment from the Tri-Cities Central Labor Union.

All business sessions will be held at the Woodmen Hall in Sheffield and the Sheffield Hotel will be headquarters for the convention.

The convention will be called to order Monday morning at 8:45 o'clock by R. J. Bailey, vice president of the state federation, with the invocation by Rev. J. D. Thompson to be followed by addresses of welcome by the mayors of each of the Tri-Cities.

Appropriate responses will be made by D. C. Gofle and J. L. Busby on behalf of the convention, after which three highly interesting addresses will take place. These speakers are John R. Neal, chief counsel for the prosecution in the Scopes evolution trial; President H. J. Willingham of the Florence Normal school, and Dr. J. B. Matthews.

The gavel will then be turned over to President J. L. Busby, of the state federation and the convention will begin at 8:45 o'clock, lasting until twelve resuming at 1:14 and continuing until the sight-seeing tour at three o'clock.

On Wednesday morning the sessions will begin at 8:15 o'clock continuing until noon and resuming at one o'clock until the business may be concluded, with a night session if it becomes necessary.

Several hundred are expected to attend the convention, including the wives and families of delegates, the accredited delegates alone being expected to exceed two hundred.

12 Years Ago From the Daily of TODAY
May 13, 1914

The Alabama Bankers Association, in session here today, selected Birmingham as its next convention point.

Edward B. Almon was elected to congress from the eighth district, tabulation of votes from the entire district revealed.

H. S. Hall, of Birmingham, is the guest of B. L. Malone.

The Nashville Booster special will arrive here next week.

Mrs. E. S. Johnson is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. John Conner of Spartansburg, S. C.

The chief of police of Chicago reports "the lid clamped down tight" in that city of hectic experiences. Possibly—possibly, but we will reserve an opinion on the matter.

Here is a new problem furnished by the "younger generation." Children of a Kansas City woman are said to have refused to live with their mother after she had her hair bobbed.

Birmingham is not without troubles of her own. In the smaller cities, citizens are apt to think they are called upon more often than necessary for subscriptions to funds of various kinds. Many times, no doubt, they wish they lived in larger communities, where the need would be so acute. Yet, we find Birmingham still wrestling with the question of raising $150,000 for the Salvation Army's Mercy Home. The fund, at last reports, was $100,000 short.

THE GENERAL STRIKE IS BROUGHT TO END AND BRITAIN BREATHES SIGH OF RELIEF

The British general strike has been called off and negotiations resumed with the miners in an effort to find a workable basis of understanding between the miners, themselves, the operators and the government, which is the public.

The net result gained by this unprecedented walkout of employed men from this distant point appears to be nil. The negotiations, interrupted by the walkout, will be resumed and, it is to be hoped, carried to a successful conclusion. In the meantime, the nation's business was brought almost to a standstill, the public suffered, the government suffered and the workers suffered. All the sacrifice has gained is a status which existed before the strike.

When will men learn that the old adage that it is foolish to "cut off one's nose to spite his face" is an applicable to industrial relations as it is to individual relations.

THE HOUSE OF A HUNDRED SORROWS TITLE OF PRIZE-WINNING EDITORIAL

Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, has refused the Pulitzer award of $1,000, declaring his contempt of the board of award, resenting the check from "any inquisition of earnest literary ladies who intend to make American literature safe, polite, obedient and sterile." Rather harsh language, even from a man whose principal claim to fame is his iconoclastic tendency, but Lewis is wrong.

After reading the editorial written by Edward M. Kingsbury, member of the staff of the New York Times, which was adjudged the best editorial appearing in an American newspaper during the year, one cannot but be convinced that these earnest literary ladies' held in such broad contempt by Lewis, possess an understanding any sympathy which the cynical Lewis could improve himself by imitating.

The prize winning editorial, reprinted below, The Daily hopes will be given a permanent place in the hearts of its readers. The problem discussed is not entirely New York's. The same problems come up from time to time here and in every other community.

The editorial follows:

The walls are grimy and discolored. The uneven floors creak and yield under foot. Staircases and landings are tickery and black. The door of every room is open. Walk along these corridors. Walk into this room. Here is a sickly boy of five, deserted by his mother, underfed, solitary in the awful solitude of starved, neglected childhood. "Seldom talks," "Strange isn't it? Some, many children, never," "prattle," like your darlings. They are already old. They are full perhaps, of long, hopeless thoughts. There are plenty of other "kids" in this tenement. Here is one, only three. Never saw his father. His mother spurned and abused him. He is weak and "backward." How wicked of him when he has been so encouraged and coddled! Doesn't know any games. How should he? Do children play? Not his kind. They live to suffer.

In room 24 is Rose, a housemother of ten. Father is in the hospital. Mother is crippled with rheumatism. Rose does all the work. You would love Rose if she came out of Dickens. Well, there she is, mothering her mother in room 24. In room 20 age has been tolling with youth, Grandmother has been taking care of three granddaughters who lost their mother. A brave old woman; but what with rheumatism and heart weakness, three-score-and ten can't go out to work any more. What's going to happen to her and her charges? Thinking of that, she is ill on top of her physical illness. A very interesting house, isn't it, Sir? Decidedly "a rum sort of place," Madam? Come into room 23. Simon the dollmaker—but hand-made dolls are "out"—lives of you call it living here. Eighty years old, his wife of about the same age. Their eyesight is mostly gone. Otherwise they would still be sewing at buttons and earning a scanty livelihood for themselves and two little girls, their grandchildren. The girls objected to going to an orphan home. Some children are like that.

You must see those twin sisters of sixty-five in room 47. True, they are doing better than usual on account of the coming holidays; making as much as 10 a month, whereas their average is but $6. Still, rents are a bit high; and the twins have been so long together that they would like to stay so. In room—but you need no guide. Once in the House of a Hundred Sorrows you will visit every sad chamber in it. If your heart be made of penetrable stuff, you will do the most you can to bring hope and comfort to its inmates, to bring them Christmas and the Christ: "For I was hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in."

"Naked and ye clothed me, I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison and ye came unto me."

COLLIER'S FAILS TO MAKE OUT ITS CASE IN URGING REPEAL OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT.

Collier's Weekly, long an advocate of prohibition, has utilized its moral and legal right to change its mind. It now advocates repeal of the 18th amendment. If Collier's wants to "about face" in its position on the prohibition question, it has a perfect right to do so, but in its pursuit of argument to substantiate its new position, the magazine makes several important mistakes.

Collier's insists that it still opposes alcohol as a thing which is bad for those who drink it. The magazine, however, would have each state and each community to settle the prohibition issue, as the people of that community would desire it to be settled. That theory sounds better than it actually is.

Collier's certainly realizes that prohibition in one county and legalized sale of intoxicants in an adjoining county fails to solve the prohibition question. In fact the dry puzzle is made even more intricate by such conditions. People who have resided in states where such plans were tried, as have the people of Alabama, know only too well that this position of Collier's is untenable in practice, regardless of how just it might sound in theory.

Collier's says:

The 18th Amendment must be repealed. Alcoholic beverages cannot be legally distributed anywhere in the United States, regardless of local sentiment, so long as the 18th Amendment is in force. We cannot afford to nullify another section of the United States Constitution and alcoholic beverages cannot be dispensed unless the 18th Amendment is either repealed or nullified. Since it is not and cannot be enforced, it must be rewritten. There is no alternative. We must not continue to dishonor the Constitution.

Once the 18th Amendment is repealed, a constructive program is possible.

The most practical proposal calls for the establishment of publicly owned dispensaries. The experiments made in Canada and Scandinavian countries prove that this is a sane and workable solution. Distributing centers should be established in those states and communities which are wet by majority vote.

The people of every state should decide the question for themselves. In dry states no dispensaries would be established. Even in wet states dry communities could exclude dispensaries by the exercise of local option.

In the distributing stations hard liquor as well as beer and wine would be sold but with a difference. Wines and beer should be priced cheaply. Hard liquor should be distributed only at high prices, as high as the rate now levied by bootleggers.

Excessively high prices would tend to persuade the rich as well as the poor to choose wine and beer rather than gin or whisky. Government certification of purity and quality at the same time would turn buyers from bootleggers to the public dispensaries.

To many good citizens the establishment of a dispensary system will seem to be an acknowledgement of defeat. It is. The truth, however, is that already prohibition has been defeated and the law brought into disrepute over a large section of the country. It is hypocrisy and fanaticism to ignore the facts.

The Daily agrees thoroughly with Collier's declaration that it is worse than foolish to ignore the facts. They should be faced.

Is it not a fact, we would ask Collier's, that the liberty of the individual in America is dependent almost altogether on the effect this freedom would have on the liberty of another? Anyone desiring to test this theory might procure for themselves an animal of the skunk species and hide it under his house until such time as the neighbors, by means of the nuisance act, force its removal. No one contests the right of a man to own a skunk, if he so desires, except that the law provides a man must not inflict the odors of his pet upon his neighbors.

Collier's admits that alcohol's effect upon the human anatomy is bad. Yet it would permit states, then communities to decide for themselves whether or not the poison would be sold within the boundaries of that particular state or community. Could not the same plan be extended to include not only communities, but cities, towns and villages? The families, or even individuals, might assert the same right.

There is an ancient prohibition law upon the books of nearly every organized section of the country, forbidding the sale of liquor within certain distances of churches and schools. That law was enacted during the time the ardent wets are prone to characterize as "the good old days" when the supply of liquor was limitless, the quality high and the price low; the days when men were supposed to be men and capable of judging when they had enough. Isn't it rather significant, in the light of present events, that never once has anyone heard of that ancient law being mauled, beaten, and otherwise punished (as has the present more extensive prohibition measure) as an invasion of man's personal liberty?

That old law and the present ones are much the same, except for the fact that the present law takes in the whole country. Both were enacted for the good of the whole people and not for the convenience of the individual. No doubt there were some church-goers in those days who would have desired greater proximity to a human "filling station," but if there were people of that kind and opinion, they had no more success in convincing the others of the mistake being made than the present-day wets will have in convincing the American nation that the large number of states which want to be "dry" should suit the convenience of the comparative few which want to be "wet."

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

were on earth what do you think he would say when he learned that a few rich mine owners had added one hour to the workmen's daily labor, taking away thirteen and one third per cent of the wages that buy food for his children? Would he not say to the rich, as St. James says to those that prey on the poor, "go to now, ye rich, weep and howl?"

THE POST OFFICE announces fifty-cities in the United States increased their postal receipts in April more than 6 per cent over the same month a year ago.

Unfortunately figures concerning use of air mail, would be discouraging.

It is necessary to warn ambitious cities anxious for air mail service that to get it they must support it if not, they will lose it.

The government cannot run an expensive air mail service merely because cities desire it.

POSTMASTER GENERAL NEW and President Coolidge are anxious to encourage profitable commercial flying through development of the air mail. But cities and citizens must do their part.

One air mail route recently established in the south for instance, serving four important cities started off magnificently, with receipts in the first brief period exceeding $2,000 ample to cover expenses. On the tenth day the receipts had dropped to $70, to meet an expense of $400. That of course won't last.

IT IS NOT expected that air mail alone shall support the flying post office service. But all interested should contribute. Banks should be interested in using air mail, to discourage check kiting, and promote business.

THE financial solution will be found eventually in carrying passengers as well as mail, an arrangement to which the administration would gladly consent. The first problem would be to find the passengers. Americans largely support flying routes in Europe, occupying more than half the seats in flying machines between London and Paris in the season. But they seem less inclined to patronize flying in their own land.

EXTREMELY important is the test for cancer recently presented at the French Academy of Medicine. If it discovers do not exaggerate this test, providing a reliable reaction in cancer cases will enable doctors to save thousands annually that now die by diagnosing cancer at the very start. That disease kills forty thousand every year in France many more in America.

There is even talk of a serum treatment for cancer, but all such talk must be considered cautiously.

MANUFACTURERS should turn their eyes toward the west where the Boulder Dam will supply hundreds of thousands of cheap horse power, the water irrigating millions of acres after the power is extracted from it.

Every big manufacturer should consider the possibilities of cheap power and reasonably priced labor plus a magnificent selling market, all along the Pacific.

Why The STUDEBAKER BIG SIX is the world's fastest-selling high-powered car

volume production on a quality basis with One-Profit facilities enables us to sell the Big Six for less than half the price of any other car of equal rated horsepower

The seven American cars that equal the Studebaker Big Six in rated horsepower sell for two to four times its price. Studebaker has not achieved this remarkable price advantage at the sacrifice of quality. Not one of these seven high-priced cars is built to higher standards than those maintained by Studebaker.

The advantage is due entirely to Studebaker's manufacturing economies—made possible by an investment of one hundred million dollars in plants and facilities.

Studebaker's unique facilities

Few motor car "manufacturers" have foundries, forges, etc., to make their own engines—yet one-fifth of an automobile's cost is in the engine. Even fewer build their own bodies—yet one-third of a car's cost is in the body.

Studebaker builds all its own bodies, all engines, all clutches, gear sets, springs, differentials, steering gears, brakes, axles, gray-iron castings and drop forgings. Only Studebaker in the fine-car field enjoys such complete manufacturing facilities.

One-Profit value

These facilities enable Studebaker to manufacture quality cars on a One-Profit basis

—eliminating the profits of outside suppliers. The savings thus effected are passed on to Studebaker owners in the form of higher quality and lower price.

Unit-Built construction

Studebaker facilities result, too, in cars designed, engineered and built as units. The hundreds of parts in a Studebaker function as a smooth-working unit, resulting in scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation; greater riding comfort and higher resale value.

Always kept up-to-date

Direct manufacturing control enables Studebaker to keep cars constantly up-to-date. We add improvements regardless of the calendar—we do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete.

These fine One-Profit Studebakers may be purchased out of income at the lowest time-payment rates known to the automotive industry

STUDEBAKER Big Six Sedan $1895

f. o. b. factory

THE 5-Passenger Big Six Sedan is powered with the identical engine that carries hundreds of Studebaker buses at high speed over some of the most mountainous and difficult-to-travel roads in America—hence we urge you to compare its thrilling performance with that of the finest cars. It is luxuriously comfortable, beautifully finished, elaborately equipped. Full-size balloon tires and snubbers smooth out rough roads. No car steers more easily.

It is richly upholstered in genuine mohair, which is indicative of the fine quality body construction you cannot see. Body pillars are of northern white ash—cross-members of hard maple.

The spark is automatically advanced and retarded by the speed of the engine. The spark lever is thus made obsolete and is replaced by the safety lighting control on the steering wheel.

It has a gasoline gauge on the dash, automatic windshield cleaner, rear-view mirror, foot-operated cowl ventilator, air cleaner, oil and gas filters, stop light, and a splendid coincidental lock to ignition and steering wheel controlled by the key that operates the door and the spare-tire locks.

Ride in it, feel the surge of power from the smooth, silent engine, and you will know why the Big Six outsells all other cars of equal or greater rated horsepower.

PICNIC SUPPER

BEREAN CLUB

Wednesday afternoon marked the close of a most successful year of work by the Berean club. The members gathered promptly at three o'clock, assembling on the veranda of the Fennel home on the Bee Line highway for the splendid program. The President, Mrs. Lovick Troup called for order when roll call response was a verse from the Holy Bible on Redemption. There was a very interesting report given by the secretary, Mrs. R. Sharp. Then followed two well prepared papers by Mesdames Gibson and Tyler. Urgent business was disposed of and in the meantime the "Marthas" of the club had spread a long table beneath the spreading Oaks and loaded it with tempting edibles for the picnic supper. Everything that goes on the menu to make an al fresco supper was on the table. The list of lucky guests included Mesdames: N. B. Bobbitt, L. Tillman, W. R. Shelton, Misses Amanda Pridie, Jennie Davidson, Maurine Bobbitt and Dr. Davidson.

AFTERNOON BRIDGE

FOR MRS. CRAWFORD

Mrs. R. N. Harris graciously received the following guests on Wednesday afternoon at her home to honor Mrs. Paul Crawford of West Palm Beach, Fla., who is a visitor in the Twin Cities; Mrs. Harry Carpenter, Mrs. S. W. Irwin, Mrs. J. R. Daniell, Mrs. H. E. Dryden, Jr., Mrs. H. D. Greer, Mrs. Rufus Peerson, Mrs. J. L. Echols, Mrs. D. S. Echols, Miss Dorothy Patterson, Mrs. B. Crawford, Mrs. E. W. Godbey, Mrs. F. S. Hunt, Mrs. Tennis Tidwell, Mrs. C. B. Elliott, Mrs. Robert Banks, Mrs. Stanley Wyatt, Mrs. Elmer Lloyd, Miss Jane Knight, Mrs. S. E. Patterson and the honoree.

The pink and white color scheme was carried out in detail, the decorations in the home being especially pretty, and included a profusion of peonies and roses. When the delicious refreshments, consisting of stuffed tomatoes, sandwiches, chips and iced tea, were served the tables were centered with vases of Kilarny roses.

The prize offered for highest score was a handsome handkerchief in a beaded bag and it was won by Mrs. Stanley Wyatt. The hostess presented Mrs. Crawford two hand embroidered handkerchiefs as a memento.

LITTLE MISSES BELL HONORED

Mrs. A. P. Bell prettily entertained on Saturday afternoon for her two little daughters, Lou Agnes and Melva June, aged seven and four, commemorating their birthdays. She was assisted in entertaining them at games and in serving the dainty ices, cakes and fruit by Mrs. H. B. Hockensmith. Many pretty mementoes were received by the two honorees.

The little guests were Marie Hardy Ruby Best, Mildred Burkett, Edward Boaz, Jr., George Donald Lawhorn Edith Seibert, Margaret Burkett, Sarah Campbell, Julian Christian, Melva June Bell, Lucille Brown, Flora McWhirter, Mabel Burkett, Helen Tucker, Margaret Griffin, Mary Lou Christian, Louise Rumble and Lou Agnes Bell.

MRS. JONES HOSTESS

TO ROOK CLUB

Mrs. T. M. Jones Sr., beautifully entertained the Ferry Street Rook club on Wednesday at the attractive home of her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Polhill. The home seemed a bower of roses and peonies as large baskets and bowls of them were used in every available space.

A salad and sweet course was enjoyed after the rook games by the club members and one guest, Mrs. William Kimbrough.

Mrs. Harris of Courtland visited relatives here this week.

Mrs. J. M. Minor was called to Leighton, leaving early Thursday by the critical illness of her sister, Mrs. Frank King in Leighton.

COTACCO CLUB

The last scheduled meeting of the Cotacco Literary club was held on Wednesday afternoon of this week at the home of Mrs. W. B. Robertson. Ross lent their beauty to the interior, adding much to the attractiveness of the home.

The answers to roll call were quotations from Shakespeare and after the roll call, routine business and all unfinished business was closed. During this time Mrs. Frank Duffey was unanimously elected a member of the club.

The literary hour was a very interesting one with Mrs. J. T. Nelson in charge. She gave a splendid paper on Westminster Abbey—"The Life of John Milton" was the title of Mrs. W. H. Day's discourse. At the close of these, Mrs. J. T. Nelson, retiring president, presented the gavel to the incoming president, Mrs. W. H. Day, with a few fitting words, to which Mrs. Day graciously responded.

During the social hour the very talented little readers, Lois Lane and Josephine Metuhardt charmed their hearers with numbers after which the hostess served an ice course. Those enjoying her hospitality with club members were Mrs. J. T. Lane and Mrs. Leonard Robertson.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

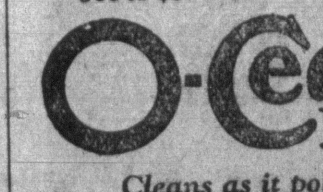

F. H. Seeley, of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted expert, will personally be at the Twickenham Hotel, and will remain in Huntsville this Friday only, May 14th. Mr. Seeley says: "The Spermatic Shield will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Being a vast advancement over all former methods—exemplifying instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and withstanding any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions.

CAUTION—All cases should be cautioned against the use of any elastic or web truss with understraps, as same rest where the lump is and not where the opening is, producing complications necessitating surgical operations. Mr. Seeley has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. He will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fee them if desired. Business demands prevent stopping at any other place in this section.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE PRINCESS

If the gales of laughter that emanated for an hour and a half from the Princess theater where a packed audience was seeing "Behind the Front" Paramount's comedy of the A. E. F., could have been broadcast throughout the district, the theater lobby would be mobbed permanently.

Rarely has such a comedy as this picture, which features Wallace Beery, Raymond Hatton, and Mary Brian been thrown on the screen in this city.

The picture starts with a chuckle and works into laughter that continues right through to the end. "Behind the Front" is remarkable in that practically every scene of the picture contains a laugh.

Among those getting the biggest amount of fun out of "sunny" France were the numerous ex-soldiers sprinkled through the audience.

As a pair of dumb doughboys, who get into all the trouble possible in the army, Beery and Hatton win first honors.

The air raid, inspection, and especially the scenes with the tank in No Man's Land, are among the funniest ever filmed.

"Behind the Front" is really a classic of the war, and of the irrepressible humor of the American doughboy.

Mary Brian as the Red Cross worker, for whose love Beery and Hatton perform all their exploits and get into all their trouble, is more charming than ever.

Chester Conklin as the Scotch "kiltie" who is imported to a Y. M. C. A. hut to tell the doughboys how he won his medals gives a riotous piece of pantomime.

The picture was adapted to the screen by Monty Brice from a short story by Hugh Wiley. Ethel Doherty wrote the screen play and Edward Sutherland wielded the megaphone.

If it hurts you to laugh, don't expose yourself to the mercies of this picture. "Behind the Front" will chase the gloom off the face of the most confirmed pessimist.

Under opiates most of the time. A DAILY ENTHUSIASM AIDS THE LIVER

Healthy Stimulation of the Heart and a Little Energetic Exercise of the Recreational Type Make One Feel Better.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WE don't hear it so much now, but one of the common complaints of older times was, "My liver is out of order."

The poor old liver was held responsible for half the symptoms suffered by man. The fact is that overeating, lack of exercise and neglect of the simplest rules of personal hygiene, had much to do with the origin of these symptoms.

The other day I read a funny limerick. If my memory serves me it ran as follows:

"A jaundiced young gent in an attic
Once thought he had trouble hepatic.
He bought him a flivver
Which shook up his liver
And now his mentality's ecstatic."

You go about your affairs, cross and sullen. You have a chip on your shoulder and ache for a fight. You are blue and distressed, imagining all sorts of terrible things about the future. You wonder if you have lost your friends and your religion even.

Is the world out of joint or is there something wrong with you?

My observation of the world and its inhabitants is that they do not change much overnight. It takes a long, long time to reorganize society. If you take this view, too, you must realize that the world hasn't gone to smash. On the contrary, the trouble is that you are out of step with the world.

The young man of the limerick, living in a dark and unventilated attic, loafing and sleeping, eating poorly prepared and badly selected food, suffered the natural results of his wrong living. Naturally, he thought his liver was out of order.

You live in an attic, too. At least you live an attic life. You neglect exercise, fresh air and simple food. Your sleep is disturbed, your head aches, you are weak in your knees and imagine vain things. You diagnose your ailment as "liver complaint."

Driving a flivver over a rough road, riding a frisky horse, rowing a boat, regatta tennis or golf, or just getting out in your flower or vegetable garden for real work—any one of these will "shake up the liver" and promote your health.

The trouble with the efforts to modernize Shakespeare is that the wrong play was selected for modernizing. Instead of "Hamlet," "Romeo and Juliet" should have been chosen. A good Juliet with rolled-down stockings would have made them hang out the S. R. O. sign regularly.

Hustle

Boost a little ev'ry day,
Shake hands in the good old way,
Cheer the fellow that's all in,
Meet folks with a friendly grin.
When a hard task comes to you,
Go right at it till it's through,
Buckle in and never quit,
That's the way to show your grit.
Countless times a grand success
Has been won through stubbornness
Of the man who won't say fail
And he plods a rugged trail,
You can do it, so can I,
If we've got the grit to try,
Set our thoughts on the things worth while,
Work and hustle, wear a smile.

Johnson Wins His Sixth Of The Year; Heinie Groh Is Given His Pink Slip

Walter Johnson, a veteran of more major league seasons than the majority of teams in the circuit have won games this year, stepped into the breach yesterday and grabbed his sixth win of the year, turning in a 7-4 victory over St. Louis and Tom Zachary, his former teammate.

Sir Walter has placed the Senators in striking distance of the top with having gather six games in the win column, he failed in one attempt. He has won one less games than the entire St. Louis team at the present time.

Youth has again triumphed over age and Lindstrom has battled his way to a victory over Heinie Groh, of the Giants. The Associated Press has the following story on Groh's release. Heinie Groh, veteran third baseman of the New York Giants, has been released unconditionally, says a special dispatch to the New York Telegram from St. Louis today. Waivers were obtained on him from all the other major league clubs.

The passing of Groh and the sale of the veteran southpaw, Art Nehf, to Cincinnati are explained by Manager John McGraw as moves to make room for new material in a shakeup of his club, which has slumped badly of late.

Groh was entitled to his unconditional release because he is a "ten-year" man, this being his fifteenth season in the majors.

Famous for his "bottle bat" and queen stance at the plate, Groh long has been a picturesque figure in National league play. He obtained his first trial with the Giants in 1911 but was released to Buffalo, and then traded to Cincinnati in 1913. He rose to stardom in the next eight years with the Reds and was brought back by the Giants in 1921 in one of the game's biggest deals, McGraw parting with George Burns, Miguel Gonzales and $100,000 in cash for the little third sacker.

Groh figured in the pennant victories of the Giants in 1922, 1923 and 1924, but knee trouble has kept him out of the game most of the time since then.

Just for the love of playing the game and perhaps for a bit of final season workout, boys of Albany high school and Decatur high school played yesterday afternoon, the former winning 9-7. Perie was in fair form and kept enemy blows well scattered during the afternoon. It is likely that the two outfits will mix again this week, though they are not playing under high school regulations.

The world champion Pirates are rather slow in getting off this year and are still occupying the second division in the league standing ladder. It is likely that the hurling ability of the Pirate outfit is backward in the league play and that poor pitching has more to do with the present slowness to round to form than the hitting of the club. Lee Meadows is the only Pirate hurler showing semblance of form, he having won his fourth straight game from Philadelphia 14-3.

CONFERENCE TEAMS READY FOR TRIALS

Records May Tumble As Stars of S. I. C. Take To Track

(Associated Press)
CHAPEL HILL, S. C., May 13.—All arrangements have been completed here for what is expected to be one of the fastest meets ever held of its kind—the fourth annual renewal of the track and field meet of the Southern Conference. The meet will take place here Friday and Saturday of this week and virtually all of the 22 Conference members have entered teams or indicated they will before the entries close.

The University of North Carolina authorities have carefully supervised the conditioning of the track this spring and it is in excellent condition. It is said that the physical condition of the course will be the equal of any in the South the day of the opening races.

Many of the Conference records have tumbled in dual meets during the season and all the young stars will be gunning for the old marks when they enter the meet.

McPherson of North Carolina, Cummings of Virginia, Tracy of Kentucky, Sides of North Carolina State and Green of Auburn will make some fast time, it is expected, in the century and two-century dashes. Both McPherson and Cummings have tied the Conference record of 9.8 second in meets this spring.

Watt of North Carolina, Davis of Washington and Lee and Baskin of Auburn look like outstanding contenders for the quarter mile hurdles. Watt won the hurdles in the Tech relays in April. Brady of Kentucky is expected to be the outstanding contender for the pole vault record while McDowell of N. C. State has more than once bettered the record high jump.

The longer races also seem to hold forth the promise of some fast time. Such stars as Williams of Sewanee, Enslow of Maryland and Jones of North Carolina are entered in the half mile.

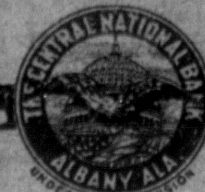

Leading contenders for the mile honors are Elliott of North Carolina, Mitchell of Georgia Tech, Leavall of Virginia and Wright of North Carolina State, the Morrow brothers of Auburn, Howard of Washington and Lee, Risher of Virginia and Pritchett, Henderson and Daniels of North Carolina are expected to speed up the two mile jaunt.

"Big" Lund of Virginia Tech, Gleaves of Virginia, Helway of Sewanee, Anglin of Kentucky and Newcomb of North Carolina will be strong contenders for discus throwing honors. Lund has beaten the Conference mark by over ten feet this season. "Windy" White of V. M. I., winner of shotput in 1925, has broken the record in dual meets this season and is looked to for a repetition of his work.

Fordham of North Carolina and Walp of Virginia are expected to be strong contenders in this field.

Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina are ranked by enthusiasts as leading contenders from the northern section of the Conference while in the Far South, Mississippi A. and M. and Louisiana State University rank as favorites. The Miss Aggies have won first place for three consecutive years with the Louisiana team second but the other institutions are looking forward to breaking this monopoly.
